

C DIGW

Copy of the Anlaby Cartulary

c. 1450

Accession number: 10/74

Historical Background: The Anlaby Cartulary is a History of the Anlaby family of Etton and was compiled by Thomas Anlaby, of Pembroke College, Cambridge. In an episode of the TV series 'Morse', the lead character enters the Bodleian Library and asks a reader what they are working on. The person replies the Anlaby Cartulary. The script writer was staying with the depositor at the time the episode was written

Custodial history: Copy purchased and used in research by the depositor

Description: Microfilm copy of MS. 329 in the Fitzwilliam Museum Cambridge

Extent: 1 item

Related material: The original is in the Fitzwilliam Museum Cambridge

Access conditions: Access will be granted to any accredited reader. This is only available on microfilm. Please ask in the searchroom for details

C DIGW/1

Copy of the Anlaby Cartulary, available on microfilm
1 item

c.1450