Corporation premises up-to-date by erecting a hall to serve as a new business premises for meetings and a venue for concerts and events. The premises where the current City Hall stands was originally built as dwellings, subsequently altered to become shops and eventually fell into a state of dilapidation. The Junction Street Scheme encompassed the destruction of these buildings, bounded by Junction Street, Carr Lane, Chariot Street and Waterworks Street, the opening up of a large area of Junction Street and the widening of the other three streets mentioned above. The area was to be used for the erection of 31 shops and a large assembly hall with a stage and orchestra. London Architect Frank Marcham advised on the design of the hall. A public art gallery was constructed simultaneously, later named the Victoria Art Gallery or Victoria Galleries. The gallery collections were later transferred to the Ferens Art Gallery when the space in Victoria Galleries became insufficient.

Planning and construction for City Hall took place between c.1903-1911 and comprised eight building contracts:

1. Cellars under front portion - J. Sangwin, contractor
 2. Front portion - George H. Panton, contractor
 3. Shops under hall - George H. Panton, contractor
 4. Work above shops - George H. Panton, contractor
 5. Five shops under Art Gallery - George H. Panton, contractor
 6. Piling - Yorkshire Hennebique Contracting Co., Ltd., contractors
 7. Completion of Hall - W. Sanderson, contractor
 8. Art Gallery - George H. Panton, contractor
- Plans can be found in PC 17/4A and TAA 100

City Hospital, Cottingham, 1928-1948 Cottingham Castle Estate was purchased by the Corporation in 1911 for the purpose of erecting a new Infectious Diseases Hospital. A Tuberculosis Hospital (or Sanatorium) was constructed on the eastern part of the estate and opened 29th June 1916. The new sanatorium constituted around one third of the estate. Prior to its construction, tuberculosis patients were treated in a section of the City Infectious Diseases Hospital (City Hospital), Hedon Road. Plans for a new, complete Infectious Diseases Hospital, to abut the Tuberculosis Sanatorium site in Cottingham, were prepared and approved in November 1914 but put on hold for the duration of the First World War. The Infectious Diseases Hospital was constructed from c.1920 under P.T. Kettlewell, contractor, and renamed City Hospital, Cottingham prior to its opening in 1929. Pavilions 1 and 2 of the Hedon Road Hospital were vacated on 27th May 1929 and pavilions 3, 4, 5 and 6 on the 31st July and 1st August 1939, patients being transferred to Cottingham. The vacated hospital buildings on Hedon Road housed the Hedon Road Maternity Hospital from 1929. The Tuberculosis Sanatorium and City Hospital, Cottingham, were renamed Castle Hill Hospital in 1948. 49 files, 3 bundles and 1 volume	19 Oct 1916- Nov 1939
