under the Group System and Military
Service Act, 1916, records

Historical Background: The Hull Military Service Tribunal was formed by the Corporation to hear applications for exemption from conscription into the British Army during World War I under the 1916 Group System and Military Service Act. Although mostly known for their decisions regarding conscientious objectors, the majority of the tribunal's work dealt with domestic and business matters.

Custodial history: Records deposited by the Town Clerks and Chief Executive's Department

Description: Memos, draft minutes, letters and accounts

Arrangement:

C WE/1	Memos relating to individual cases	1916-1919
C WE/2	Minutes and letters	1917-1918
C WE/3	Accounts	1916-1918

Extent: 1/2 box

Related Materials: The main source of information on the work of the tribunals can be found in the local newspapers, which are available on microfilm at the History Centre. At The National Archives at Kew are the Central Military Service Tribunal and Middlesex Appeal Tribunal minutes and papers (ref. MH 47) whilst there are some tribunal records for Cumberland and Westmorland at the Cumbria Record Office.

Access conditions: Access will be granted to any accredited reader
