Hymers College, Hull, records

1877-1975

Historical Background: Hymers College was built after the Reverend John Hymers, Rector of Brandesburton, who died in 1887, left money in his will for a school to be built "for the training of intelligence in whatever social rank of life it may be found".

Built on the site of the Hull Botanic Gardens on Spring Bank, Hymers opened in 1893 as a school for boys. The first Headmaster, Mr Charles Gore, was admitted to the Headmasters' Conference (HMC), which represented the leading independent schools in the country, and was something all successive Headmasters achieved. The school grew quickly and new buildings were added. Scholarships and bursaries were provided from the start to allow pupils to attend whose parents could not pay the school fees.

Hymers became a Direct Grant school in 1946, with the local authority providing fees for many boys. When direct grant status was abolished in 1971 the Governors decided not to become a local authority school and instead became fully independent. Girls were admitted into the Sixth Form in the 1970's and in 1989 Hymers went fully co-educational.
