Historical Background:

There are two competing stories of the origins of the Sykes family. James Legard claims that the Sykes family had land in the parish of Thornhill near Leeds in the thirteenth century. However, the story with official currency is that the family may originally have been from Saxony and were settled in Sykes Dyke near Carlisle in Cumberland during the middle ages. William Sykes (c.1500-1577), a younger son of Richard Sykes of Sykes Dyke, migrated to the West Riding of Yorkshire and settled near Leeds. Here the family built up its wealth in the cloth trade (Foster, Pedigrees; Legard, The Legards, p.191; Syme, 'Sledmere Hall', p.41; Ward, East Yorkshire landed estates, p.13).

William Sykes had at least five sons, one of whom was a Catholic priest who was hanged drawn and quartered at York Castle in 1588. A younger son, Richard Sykes (c.1530-1576) helped his father build up the business in the cloth trade and his son, another Richard Sykes, was a wealthy alderman and joint lord of the manor of Leeds after purchase in 1625. He is said to have built the workhouse in Leeds and he left a vast personal fortune which included £10,000 to each of his daughters. In 1593 he married Elizabeth Mawson and they had six sons and four daughters. Two sons died in infancy and another as a young man. The older surviving sons stayed in and around Leeds. The fifth son, William Sykes (b.1605), established himself in Knottingley and married Grace Jenkinson. William Sykes died a prisoner in York Castle in 1652 leaving his wife with five sons and three daughters all under the age of twenty. In 1684 Grace, who was a quaker, followed her husband to York Castle and she died in the following year (Foster, Pedigrees; English, The great landowners; p.28; Hobson, 'Sledmere and the Sykes family').

William and Grace Sykes' fourth son, Daniel (b.1632), was the first of this merchant family to begin trading in Hull. He married Deborah Oates, daughter of the mayor of Pontefract where both he and his wife were later buried. He was twice mayor of Hull and amassed a fortune from shipping and finance, thus moving away from the family tradition of trading in cloth. They had two sons, Joseph and Richard, the former of whom drowned in May 1697. William Sykes died just a few months later in August 1697. The younger son, Richard (b.1678), diversified the family trading interests further concentrating on the flourishing Baltic trade and the wealth of the family was built on this in the first half of the eighteenth century. By the 1750s the Sykes family shared 60% of Hull's pig iron trade with Hull's other leading eighteenth-century merchant family, the Maisters. Richard Sykes consolidated his position by marrying Mary Kirkby, co-heiress to the estates of the third largest merchant in Hull, Mark Kirkby. They had three sons and three daughters. Two daughters died in infancy. The youngest son, Daniel, was born in January 1714 and buried in April, having died within a few days of his mother who was buried with him. Richard Sykes married, secondly, Martha Donkin, and had by her two sons, one of whom died in infancy. Richard Sykes and his second wife died within days of one another, in 1726. Their surviving son, Joseph Sykes (1723-1805), went on to manage the family's business with his older half brother, Richard Sykes (b.1706). Joseph and Richard Sykes ultimately split their business interests and Joseph Sykes bought estates around West Ella and Kirk Ella just outside Hull. Estate and family papers for Joseph Sykes are at DDKE which has a separate entry (Foster, Pedigrees; Hobson, 'Sledmere and the Sykes family'; Jackson, Hull in the eighteenth century, p.96).

Richard Sykes the younger, came into the Sledmere estates in 1748. These were his mother's inheritance from her brother Mark Kirkby who had lived in the Tudor mansion house there since the death of their father in 1718 and had, in the final five years of his life, spent £4000 increasing his Sledmere landholdings. Richard Sykes took this programme of expansion further. He demolished the house and built a new one in 1751. He rebuilt Sledmere church, bought more land and, sensibly, planted 20,000 trees on the previously-treeless wolds. Richard Sykes became high sheriff of Yorkshire in 1752. He married twice but died childless in 1761 (Foster, Pedigrees; John Cornforth, Sledmere House, p.3; Hobson, 'Sledmere and the Sykes family').

Richard Sykes was succeeded at Sledmere by his brother, Mark Sykes (b.1711), second son of the older Richard Sykes and Mary Kirkby. Mark Sykes took B.A. and then M.A. in Cambridge and was a fellow of Peterhouse. He was awarded his Doctorate in Divinity in the same year he inherited Sledmere, 1761. He had a living at Roos and was resident there when his brother died. He was married to Decima Woodham by whom he had five sons and a daughter. Two sons died in infancy and another two died as young adults leaving no children of their own. Their daughter married but also died without issue. When Mark Sykes died in 1783, therefore, he was succeeded at Sledmere by his one surviving child, Christopher Sykes, who also inherited his father's baronetcy awarded in the last months of his father's life (Foster, Pedigrees; Hobson, 'Sledmere and the Sykes family').

Christopher Sykes was born in 1749. He was MP for Beverley 1784-90 and though he supported Pitt during the regency crisis and voted for parliamentary reform he is not known to have spoken in the house. In 1770 he made a very fortuitous marriage with Elizabeth Egerton of Tatton whose inheritance of £17,000 from her father was hugely augmented by her inheriting her brother's Cheshire estates and another £60,000 from her aunt in 1780. Christopher Sykes sold off shipping interests and government stock and he and his wife built up the Sledmere estate. They frantically bought land and enclosed huge areas for cultivation with artificial fertilizers. In the 1780s Elizabeth's third inheritance was ploughed into building two new wings to the house and Christopher Sykes not only worked closely with the plasterer, Joseph Rose, on the interior decoration, but was largely responsible for the exterior design after seeking plans from both John Carr and Samuel Wyatt. The grounds were landscaped along the lines of plans by Capability Brown and 1000 acres of trees were planted. The entire village of Sledmere was relocated. Christopher Sykes clearly visualised himself as a man who had left commerce and joined the landed classes. A famous picture of him and his wife, painted by George Romney in the 1780s, depicts the couple surveying their parkland estates stretching away to the horizon; Christopher Sykes holds in his hands spectacles and an estate plan. He had an engraving done of the vast library he built and sent copies of it to friends (Foster, Pedigrees; Namier & Brooke, The house of commons, iii, p.514; Hobson, 'Sledmere and the Sykes family'; English, The great landowners, pp.28-9, 62-6; Cornforth, Sledmere House, p.4; Syme, 'Sledmere Hall', pp. 43-6; Pevsner & Neave, York and the East Riding, p.693; Popham, 'Sir Christopher Sykes at Sledmere' I & II).

Christopher Sykes was a gambler 'playing the futures market in land'. He indulged in 'breathless selling and buying', but he did so at a time when continental war was forcing up agricultural prices. In the last quarter of the eighteenth century rentals in Sledmere increased sevenfold and Christopher Sykes used this money, plus money from a bank started in the 1790s, to buy and sell and buy and sell even more. By the time he died he was indebted to the tune of nearly £90,000 but he left behind him a vast estate of nearly 30,000 acres and a large mansion set in its own 200 acre parkland (English, The great landowners, pp.62-6; Ward, East Yorkshire landed estates, pp.13-15).

Christopher and Elizabeth Sykes lived until 1801 and 1803 respectively. They left behind three sons and two daughters. Their youngest daughter, Elizabeth, married back into the Egerton family of Tatton Park. Their second son, Tatton, and eldest daughter married offspring of Sir William Foulis of Ingleby manor. Their eldest son, Mark Masterman Sykes (b. 1771), married Henrietta Masterman in 1795. Henrietta was the heiress of Henry Masterman of Settrington Hall and Mark Sykes therefore assumed the name of Masterman. He married, secondly, in 1814, a member of the Egerton family. He went to Brasenose college, Oxford and was high sheriff of Yorkshire in 1795 and MP for York from 1807 to 1820. He was a sportsman and gambler, but was also a knowledgeable collector of books and fine arts with one of the finest private libraries in England filling the library his father had built. He collected especially first printed editions of the classics, the jewel in his collection being a late fifteenth-century edition of Livy which sold for 400 guineas in 1824. He also owned one of the 18 known copies of the Gutenberg Bible. Mark Masterman Sykes died childless in 1823 and the estate and his collections were inherited by his younger brother Tatton Sykes (Foster, Pedigrees; Dictionary of National Biography; Ross, Celebrities of the Yorkshire wolds, p.154; Hobson, 'Sledmere and the Sykes family'; Fairfax-Blakeborough, Sykes of Sledmere, p.47).

Sir Tatton Sykes (b.1772), 4th baronet, 'was not a great scholar'. As a young man he was made articled clerk to a London law firm, but quickly developed an interest in racing rather than the law. He returned to Yorkshire, worked for a while for a Hull bank, but developed more of an interest in agricultural techniques, especially the use of bone manures. He married in 1822 and succeeded to the Sledmere estates in 1823. A year later he sold his brother's library for £10,000 and his paintings and other works of art for £6000 and bought instead bloodstock breeding horses. He was a man of extreme puritanical habits and old-fashioned dress who behaved as a basically benevolent despot with his tenants (they helped erect a vast 120 foot monument to his memory at Garton-on-the-Wolds when he died), but whose cruelty to his own family had far-reaching effects. He beat his children and his behaviour made his wife a cold and distant mother to them who escaped to London whenever she could and who hid in her orangery with her flowers when she was at home. Their eldest son 'grew up in an atmosphere devoid of love' and when he succeeded to the estates on his father's death in 1863 he immediately sold his father's race horses and demolished his mother's orangery (Foster, Pedigrees; information about the Sledmere stud is contained in Fairfax-Blakeborough, Sykes of Sledmere; Noakes, 'Memories of Sir Tatton Sykes'; Denton Robinson, 'A Yorkshire landmark'; Sykes, The visitors' book, pp.19-20, 28-32; Kay, Great men of Yorkshire, pp.108-115; Dictionary of National Biography; Ross, Celebrities of the Yorkshire wolds, pp.155-7; English, The great landowners, pp. 218, 220; Hobson, 'Sledmere and the Sykes family').

Tatton Sykes, 5th baronet, was born in 1826. His harsh childhood turned him into a rather withdrawn man who was an uncomfortable landlord. He disliked the sight of women and children lingering out the front of houses and made the tenants bolt up their front doors and only use back entrances. He banned the cultivation of flowers in Sledmere village. However, he was also efficient. The sale of his father's stud for £30,000 enabled him to concentrate on only buying a number of winning horses and by 1892 he owned 34,000 acres of land and was able to keep this vast estate running at a profit most years despite a decade of severe economic depression. He was also charitable in very particular ways. He was involved in the restoration of 17 churches at a cost of £10,000 each most of which came out of his private purse rather than estate accounts (Sykes, The visitors' book, pp.31-2; Hobson, 'Sledmere and the Sykes family'; English, The great landowners, p.226; Ward, East Yorkshire landed estates, p.15; English, 'On the eve of the great depression', p.40).

Tatton Sykes was cornered into marriage in 1874 by the very determined mother of (Christina Anne) Jessica Cavendish-Bentinck who was thirty years his junior. Their marriage was a disaster and the coldness of their relations caused a rift that deepened with the passing years. She bore him a child, Mark Sykes, in 1879 and three years later she and the child became Catholics. By the 1890s Jessica Sykes was leading a gay but fragile (and alcoholic) life in London and sometimes overseas. She published a novel, a travel journal in Africa during the Boer war and a political commentary on France, but fell further and further into debt and disgrace culminating in Tatton Sykes refusing to pay her debts followed by a very spectacular court case. She died prematurely in 1912. Tatton Sykes died a year later, leaving their son to succeed (Sykes, The visitors' book, pp.36ff; Hobson, 'Sledmere and the Sykes family').

Mark Sykes seems to have been more a product of his mother than his father, a restless man with a talent for writing. His first book came out in 1900 and was a political travel journal, Through five Turkish provinces. He married in 1903 the sister of his mother's lover, Edith Gorst, and their honeymoon took them to Paris, Rome, Constantinople and Jerusalem. This kind of frantic travelling was to characterise their life together. Mark Sykes' next literary venture, a military parody and satire called Tactics and military training (published semi-pseudonymously by Major-General George D'Ordel), was a huge success and brought him to the attention of George Wyndham, chief secretary of Ireland, who offered him the post of private secretary which he took. However, bored with the job he produced two more books, Dar-ul-Islam and D'Ordel's Pantechnicon (Sykes, The visitors' book, pp.156-87; Hobson, 'Sledmere and the Sykes family'; Adelson, Mark Sykes, passim).

In 1904 Mark and Edith Sykes had their first child, Freya, and she was followed by Richard (b.1905), Christopher and Petsy (twins born in 1907), Angela (b.1911) and Daniel (b.1916). The second child, Richard, was born while Mark Sykes was serving as honorary attache in Constantinople before he and his wife travelled back to England in 1906, largely on horseback. His final major work, The Caliph's last heritage was an account of this journey and it appeared, edited by his wife, in 1915. On his return Mark Sykes threw himself into national and local politics and was elected MP for Central Hull in 1911. Just before the outbreak of the war he inherited the shell of Sledmere house, which had been devastated by fire in 1911, and he spent the next half dozen years rebuilding with the help of Walter Brierley (details in English, 'The rebuilding of Sledmere house'). From 1915 the family lived in the house and it served as a troop hospital during the war. Mark Sykes occupied himself for the early part of the war developing the Waggoner's Special Reserve with 1000 men trained as technical reservists. From about May 1915 he became more directly involved after being called to the War Office by Lord Kitchener. He was employed in intelligence and diplomatic work, being regarded as an expert on the Middle East. The collection is filled with his letters and reports from his time in this role and are especially rich in material about the pan-Arab movement, and Zionism to which he was an early convert. He is largely remembered for the part he played in forging an Inter-Allied agreement about the Middle East in 1916 called the Sykes-Picot agreement. In late 1916 he was made political secretary to the war cabinet and again journeyed to the Middle East. A year later he was moved to the Foreign Office where he advised on Arab and Palestinian affairs. In 1918 he was reporting on Armenian refugees and problems of Middle East resettlement. He was re-elected to parliament while away with a huge majority. While in Paris during the peace conference Mark Sykes contracted influenza and died at the age of only 39. He was a crucial figure in Middle East policy decision-making during the first world war and his papers are a very rich source of material on war policy (Adelson, Mark Sykes, chpts.10-15; Dictionary of National Biography; Hobson, 'Sledmere and the Sykes family').

When Mark Sykes died, Edith was left with a family who ranged in age from three years to thirteen years. His younger son, Christopher, went on to write in his own name and pseudonymously, romances, murders, travel stories, pseudo-philosophical war commentaries and biographies, so following in the footsteps of his father and grandmother. Richard Sykes, who became 7th baronet, married Virginia Gilliat, and they had six children between 1943 and 1957. He inherited an estate reduced by a third by his father to pay death duties and the debts of Jessica Sykes. However the Sledmere estate is still one of the largest landed estates in Yorkshire and its impact on the wolds is very visible. It is now run by the oldest son of Richard Sykes, Tatton Sykes, the 8th baronet, who succeeded when his father died in 1978 (Cornforth, 'Sledmere House', p.32; obit. in The Georgian Society for East Yorkshire).

Custodial history:

Description:
U DDSY comprises a very large deposit of estate papers, genealogical material for the Sykes and local families, and personal family papers including correspondence and diaries, largely for the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries. U DDSY2 comprises the personal and political papers of Mark Sykes (1879-1919) including his literary manuscripts and correspondence relating to the Sykes-Picot agreement. In addition there are papers relating to work on his family's history and this includes family letters and papers of the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries. U DDSY3 also comprises largely early Sykes letters and papers and amongst these are 77 letters to Richard Sykes, in his role as Captain of the Hull Volunteers, about the Jacobite rebellion of 1745. U DDSY3 is a very valuable source of material for the social history of eighteenth-century England. U DDSY4 is a small deposit containing miscellaneous estate papers, some family correspondence and twentieth-century office diaries. U DDSY5 is a large deposit of estate papers, accounts, legal papers and subject files created by Crust, Todd and Mills, solicitors. The deposits in detail now follow.

U DDSY contains estate papers for the East Riding of Yorkshire in this order: manorial records for Balkholme (1608-1659); conveyance of Barmby on the Moor (1861); Beverley (1385-1784) including early title deeds and a letter and account book of Christopher Sykes as MP for Beverley 1784-9; Bishop Wilton (1379-1880) including court rolls for 1379-80 and the sixteenth, seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, an account roll of Robert Hall, steward of the prebend, for 1468-9, surrenders and admissions in the manor court 1605-89, sales and conveyances, correspondence of Timothy Mortimer and Richard Darley, pedigrees of the Darley and Rogerson families, an original bundle relating to the estates of Roger Gee, eighteenth century farm leases, the marriage settlements of Catherine Darley and John Wentworth (1703) and John Toke and Margaret Roundell (1762), and several seventeenth-century wills of the Smith, Darley, Sanderson, Hansby and Hildyard families; papers about Bridlington pier (1789); Brigham (1683-1864) including eighteenth-century wills of the Brigham and Wilberforce families, the sale in 1794 to Christopher Sykes and its transfer in 1797 to his second son, Tatton Sykes, and eighteenth-century farm leases; Burton Pidsea (1601-1843) including the wills of Christopher Wilson (1640) and William Ford (1828) and the transfer of title in 1738 from the Wilson family to Mark Kirkby; a plan of Cottam (1760); Croom (1607-1821) including the letters patents granting to the earl of Clancry the rectory and tithes of Sledmere in 1607, seventeenth and eighteenth century papers of the Rousby family and the sale of Croom in 1812 to Mark Masterman Sykes; Dalton Holme (1879); Derwent (drainage and navigation) (1772-1800) including 75 letters of Christopher Sykes, 2nd baronet; Driffield (1790, 1860); Drypool (1773-1794); Duggleby (1669-1800); Eastrington

Most of the papers of personal interest for the Sykes family are in three sections - correspondence, diaries and journals, and a large miscellaneous section. The correspondence section has a few miscellaneous letters including Arundel Penruddock's last letter to her husband before his execution in 1655 and some eighteenth-century and nineteenth-century letters including one from the bishop of Clogher to Sir Henry Beaumont in 1751 and a file of 30 letters dated 1879 giving notice to quit farms. The earliest correspondence for the Sykes family is that of Richard Sykes, Hull merchant (1678-1726), from his factors in Danzig, his agent in the Navy Office and local gentry. The correspondence of Mark Sykes (1711-1783) includes six letters from the London merchant Henry de Ponthieu about the French in Canada 1761-3, circa 100 letters from his London banker, Joseph Denison, and letters from local gentry containing local gossip. There is also a letter book for Richard and Mark Sykes. The correspondence of Christopher Sykes, 2nd baronet (1749-1801) includes two letters from the archbishop of York, letters from Joseph Denison, banker, and Timothy Mortimer, solicitor, letters from Richard Henry Beaumont about local affairs, letters from his steward, George Britton, about estate affairs, letters from the local merchant, Robert Carlisle Broadley, and about 270 other letters from a wide range of people including William Carr of York and Henry Maister of Hull. There are a few letters to Mark Masterman Sykes, 3rd baronet (1771-1823). The correspondence of Tatton Sykes, 4th baronet (1772-1863), includes letters from other family members, local gentry such as William Foulis, his letters to his estate agent and to John Lockwood about legal matters. Letters to Tatton Sykes, 5th baronet (1826-1913), include some from solicitors, the archbishop of York, the East Riding bank, from agents and local gentry. There are letter books kept by his agent and cousin, Henry Cholmondeley and separate letter books kept about horse racing and breeding. There are a few letters addressed to or relating to his estranged wife, Jessica Sykes. There is one letter book for Mark Sykes (1879-1919) covering the years 1902-1919. Diaries and journals kept by the Sykes family reflect their influence and interests. The diary of Richard Sykes for 1752 includes information on dinner guests (who included Laurence Sterne and the archbishop of York), local affairs, servants’ wages and the declaration of war against France. The diaries of Christopher Sykes, which are intermittent from 1771 to 1796 include information on Sledmere House, financial affairs, Sarah Siddons and a journey to the west country. The diaries of Tatton Sykes, which are intermittent from 1793 to 1832, contain much on hunting, horses and social affairs. Miscellaneous family diaries and journals include one of a tour of Italy in 1852.

U DDSY has an extensive miscellaneous section. There are some anonymous notes of proceedings in the parliaments of Mary between 6 July 1553 and 2 April 1554 and Elizabeth between 5 May and 30 June 1572. There is also a manuscript account of Wyatt’s Rebellion and the marriage of Queen Mary to Philip of Spain. Other miscellaneous items include a 1587 manuscript giving the names of all ports and landing places on the coasts of England and Wales, copies of some documents of interest for the English Civil War (for example, copies of letters to General Monck and minutes of the Council of State about subscription to the Covenant), a transcribed copy of Sir Thomas Herbert’s account of the last two years of Charles I and his execution, some seventeenth-century printed material and some information about the Sykes family during the seventeenth century. Eighteenth-century material includes pamphlets, an inventory of the plate of Mark Kirkby, an account of the funeral of Mary Sykes who died unmarried at the age of 35 in 1744, a tract on the origins of venereal disease, some recipe and household medicinal books, the 1751 enquiry into the lunacy of Ann Barnard, lists of tenants, post-mortem results on Thomas Tatton and Mrs Egerton (who died as a result of childbirth), a description of a meteorite which fell in Thwing, the details of a house purchase by John Lockwood, the sale catalogues of the library and fine art collections of Mark Masterman Sykes in 1824, the correspondence and papers in parliament about the trial of Warren Hastings, some copies of ‘The English Chronicle’ and the ‘Universal Evening Post’ and nineteenth-century catalogues and racing calendars.

U DDSY2 comprises the papers of Sir Mark Sykes (1879-1919). His correspondence includes his letters to Henry Cholmondeley, his cousin and estate manager, a few letters to his father, Tatton Sykes, as well as over 400 letters to his wife, Edith. Many of his letters are illustrated with cartoons. Letters and telegrams to him are from a wide range of correspondents who include Alfred Dowling, E G Browne, Francis Maunsell, Grant Dalton and Oswald Fitzgerald. There are a few personal letters, for example from Aubrey Herbert and the duke of Norfolk, but many are constituency letters and communications from important political figures with whom he was involved such as Winston Churchill and Chaim Weizmann. Embedded in his correspondence is also the correspondence of his wife Edith nee Gorst and his mother Jessica (nee Cavendish-Bentinck). His mother was involved in some Catholic politics and the collection also includes one letter from the duke of Norfolk to Cardinal Manning about the building of Westminster Cathedral.

U DDSY2 also contains Mark Sykes’ appointment diaries from 1903 and his account books, including those for his trips to Paris and the Middle East. A large section of material catalogued as ‘Foreign affairs and travel’ is divided into material relating to his travel prior to the first world war and material relating to his wartime activity. The pre-war material contains notebooks and drawings of journeys including the trip taken by Mark and Edith Sykes from Sinope to Aleppo in 1906 (written up as The caliph’s last heritage). The earliest is a trip Mark Sykes took between Jericho and Damascus in 1898. There are letters, maps and plans from several trips to Turkey and the Ottoman Empire and material relating to his time as military attache at Constantinople 1904-6.

The wartime material in U DDSY2 is a rich source of information on affairs in the Middle East. It includes a draft of a letter from Mark Sykes to Winston Churchill which indicates that in January 1915 Sykes lent strong support to the idea of a Dardanelles offensive at a time when Churchill was trying to convince Lord Fisher and the War Council of its viability. Other copies of letters include one from Austen Chamberlain in 1916 and one to Lord Curson about the work of the Mesopotamian Administration Sub-Committee. The war material contains reports on such things as the pan-Arab party in Syria in 1915, the Armenian question, letters from General Clayton with information on cabinet affairs, Arab affairs, on T E Lawrence. There are telegrams from Arthur Balfour and many papers relating to his work with F G Picot for an Inter-Allied settlement in the Middle East (the Sykes-Picot agreement). Material from his Middle East mission of 1918-1919 includes 85 letters, more than half of them about the Armenian massacre of 1915 and refugees. There are another 21 letters relating to the Anglo-Russian Friendship Society and a large number from people involved in the settlement of the Jewish state and Zionism. These include correspondence from Chaim Weizmann, F G Picot, Nahum Sokolow, C P Scott, W Ormesby-Gore, Ronald Storr and members of the British Palestine Committee (Capern, 'Mark Sykes, Winston Churchill and the Dardanelles Campaign').

A fifth section in U DDSY2 has material on military affairs and this includes battalion orders 1907-1914, material relating to Sykes' Wagoners' Special Reserve, and miscellaneous lectures and reports about this (including a draft letter to Lloyd George) and material relating to Sykes' organization in 1913 and 1914 of the Royal Naval and Military tournaments. A sixth section of 'projects' includes material for his literary projects (for example, notes and proofs of The caliph's last heritage and a letter from H G Wells complimenting him on a book) and other projects such as Edith's hospital in France and the war memorials built at Sledmere. A seventh section on political affairs includes all his correspondence during campaigning and during his time as MP for Central Hull as well as his speeches on such matters as Irish Home Rule.

A miscellaneous section in U DDSY2 includes a sketchbook with plans of the rebuilding of Sledmere house and printed material. A tenth section comprises material used by Shane Leslie in the 1920s for his book on Mark Sykes and amongst this are cartoons, obituary
U DDSY3 contains manor court rolls for Roos in the East Riding of Yorkshire (1538-1774) and some miscellaneous material (1786-1881). U DDSY3/1 comprises 77 letters to Richard Sykes detailing the Jacobite Rebellion of 1745. The rest of the deposit is constructed of letters and papers of the family arranged roughly chronologically. Letters and papers for 1641-1769 include the letters of Richard Sykes from his brother and local gentry and from Joseph Denison about business matters such as banking and the Leeds cloth trade, and some news of local electioneering. Letters to the Reverend Mark Sykes largely comprise correspondence from Joseph Denison as well. The following wills are in this section: Richard Sykes of Leeds (1641); William Sykes of Knottingley (1652); Grace [Jenkinson] Sykes of Leeds (1685); Richard Sykes of Leeds (1693); Daniel Sykes of Knottingley (1697); Richard Sykes of Stockholm (1703); Deborah Mason [Oates/Sykes] (1730). Letters and papers for 1770-1782 include letters to the Reverend Mark Sykes about local fairs, banking and holding manor courts in Roos, letters to Captain Christopher Sykes about family and local affairs, some charity and poor rate assessment material, the marriage licence of Christopher Sykes and Elizabeth Tatton and the will of Mark Sykes (1781). Letters and papers for 1783-1793 include letters to Christopher Sykes from his family and local gentry, from Henry Maister, the Hull merchant and from John Lockwood, solicitor. There are also some estate accounts, banking bonds, the 1791 purchase for £33,000 of a 1000 acre estate in Ottringham Marsh, the 1785 subscription list for the charitable York Spinning School and some early material for Tatton Sykes (later 4th baronet) including his articled-clerk papers of 1790 and a small number of family letters. Letters and papers for 1794-1823 include letters of Christopher Sykes about Sledmere and local affairs and the correspondence of his brother, Tatton Sykes and Mark Masterman Sykes. There are miscellaneous estate papers and letters to Mark Masterman Sykes from the earls of Carlisle and Lancaster and from members of the local gentry. Letters and papers for 1604-1766 include some seventeenth-century manorial records for Knottingley and for Knutsford and Bucklow in County Chester. There are some papers of the Kirkby family, the marriage settlements of Francis Mason and Deborah Sykes (1700) and the ordination certificate of Mark Sykes by the bishop of Ely and his admission to the rectory of Roos. There are the wills of Stephen Oates (1743); William Ford (1766); Mark Sykes (1767, 1774); Thomas Hall (1769) and William Tatton (1775). There are letters to Christopher Sykes from his father, from Joseph Denison, from Roger Gee of Bishop Burton, and these are all about local affairs, fishing, hunting, coin and medal cabinets, wines etc. Letters and papers for 1780-1852 include letters to Christopher Sykes from Joseph Sykes of Kirk Ella (see DDKE), Henry Maister, other local business connections in and around Hull and his son, Christopher Sykes. Topics include mention of the death of Capability Brown and the Hull Bank. There are also some letters to Mark Masterman Sykes and papers about the estates of Christopher Ford of Owstwick. There is also some drainage and navigation material as well as some printed material from the Royal Humane Society in the 1790s and accounts.
for the engraving of the library at Sledmere. There are two wills: Timothy Mortimer (1788) and Robert Bewlay (1780).

Originally listed as a second appendix to the main deposit of U DDSY2, and now at U DDSY3/10, are 22 bound typescript volumes of transcripts of family papers which were probably put together when Mark Sykes was working on his family history. His unfinished draft manuscript is available (volume 12). Some of the volumes contain transcripts of material held in original form in the rest of the archive. However, of the material not held at Hull University Archives, the most interesting includes a letterbook of Richard Sykes (1749-61), some early recipe books, two letterbooks of Christopher Sykes (1775-95), a letterbook of Mark Masterman Sykes (1802-8), a journal of a continental tour by Richard Sykes (1730) and a journal of a tour in Wales by Lady Sykes (1796). Volume 22 contains a name index.

U DDSY4 is a small additional collection largely comprising estate papers of Mark Sykes with some miscellaneous earlier family papers. Estate papers are as follows: a sale catalogue for Bishop Wilton (1917); a sale catalogue for Eddlethorpe (1916); an enclosure award for Wetwang (1806); other miscellaneous estate papers including nineteenth-century daybooks and ledgers for Sledmere, some household accounts for Christopher Sykes (1785-1811) and Mark Masterman Sykes (1814-1823), labour expense books from 1839, the private account book of the Reverend Mark Sykes (1767-1781) and vouchers from 1846. Correspondence in U DDSY4 spans pre-1801-1979 and includes estate letter books (1919-1948); subject files (1925-1979), a few letters of Sir Tatton and Lady Sykes of the 1870s and copies of letters of Mark Sykes (1907-1911). Miscellaneous earlier diaries include one for Mark Kirkby (1673-1692) and one of Tatton Sykes, 4th baronet. There are also office diaries 1918-1940. U DDSY4 also contains files of estate improvement schemes (1961-1983); maps and plans (late 17th century-1929), including maps of seventeenth-century roads from York to Whitby and Scarborough and a 1737 printed plan of London in 1578 (in 7 parts); rentals and rent accounts (1796-1956) and material relating to the Sledmere stud which spans the dates 1801-1979 but is largely twentieth century. This includes horse valuations and photographs.

The fifth deposit, U DDSY5, contains title deeds, manorial records, sales particulars, tenancy agreements and related correspondence, mainly dating from the 19th and 20th centuries, for the following places in the East Riding: Barby; Beverley; Bishop Wilton; Brandesburton; Bishopthorpe; Burstwick; Croom; East Heslerton; Eddlethorpe; Elloughton; Fimber; Fridaythorpe; Garton; Hedon; Helperthorpe (including papers about a dispute with the vicar of Lutton over grazing rights); Howlem; Howden; Kirby Grindalythe; Kirkburn; Langtoft; Nafferton; North Frodingham; Owstwick; Owthorpe; Preston; Sledmere (including papers about the village hall, 1953); Thirkleby; Thixendale; Thorngumbald; Tibthorpe; Wansford; Wetwang; Wharram Percy (comprising a terrier, 1817). There are also reports for Beverley and Barmston Drainage, 1879-1881; title deeds, tenancy agreements, correspondence, sales particulars for properties in London, Sussex and Ireland; and papers about the maintenance of the Sykes churches in the East Riding. There is a large series of late 19th and 20th century accounts, especially for Sir Tatton and Lady Jessica Sykes, their estates, the estate of Sir Mark Sykes after his death and of his children's shares in the estate. Correspondence covers finance, estate and legal affairs, and there is a separate and extensive series of legal papers concerning the estate and personal affairs of Sir Tatton and Lady Jessica Sykes (including their divorce and Lady Sykes' debts), the estate of Sir Mark Sykes and the Sledmere Stud. A small number of inventories of the contents of Sledmere Hall is available, covering 1863-1951. There are very few maps and plans in this deposit, but amongst these is the 1778 plan of alterations at Sledmere designed by Capability Brown for Sir Christopher Sykes. Settlements are available for Sir Tatton Sykes 4th baronet, Sir Tatton Sykes 5th baronet, Lady Jessica Sykes, Sir Mark Sykes, Sir Richard Sykes and several other children.
of Sir Mark. Wills and related papers include the will of Sir Tatton Sykes 4th baronet. The deposit ends with a large series of subject files on the Sledmere Settled Estates, created by the solicitors Crust, Todd and Mills. These files cover such topics as the sale of land, buildings and other property, rent, tithes, debts, wills, marriage settlements, trusts, the estates of Sir Mark and Lady Edith Sykes, Sledmere Stud, and various local issues such as schools and water supplies.

Description:
DDSY2 comprises the papers of Sir Mark Sykes (1879-1919). His correspondence includes his letters to Henry Cholmondeley, his cousin and estate manager, a few letters to his father, Tatton Sykes, as well as over 400 letters to his wife, Edith. Many of his letters are illustrated with cartoons. Letters and telegrams to him are from a wide range of correspondents who include Alfred Dowling, E G Browne, Francis Maunsell, Grant Dalton and Oswald Fitzgerald. There are a few personal letters, for example from Aubrey Herbert and the duke of Norfolk, but many are constituency letters and communications from important political figures with whom he was involved such as Winston Churchill and Chaim Weizmann. Embedded in his correspondence is also the correspondence of his wife Edith nee Gorst and his mother Jessica (nee Cavendish-Bentinck). His mother was involved in some Catholic politics and the collection also includes one letter from the duke of Norfolk to Cardinal Manning about the building of Westminster Cathedral.

DDSY2 also contains Mark Sykes' appointment diaries from 1903 and his account books, including those for his trips to Paris and the Middle East. A large section of material catalogued as 'Foreign affairs and travel' is divided into material relating to his travel prior to the first world war and material relating to his wartime activity. The pre-war material contains notebooks and drawings of journeys including the trip taken by Mark and Edith Sykes from Sinope to Aleppo in 1906 (written up as The caliph's last heritage). The earliest is a trip Mark Sykes took between Jericho and Damascus in 1898. There are letters, maps and plans from several trips to Turkey and the Ottoman Empire and material relating to his time as military attache at Constantinople 1904-6.

The wartime material in DDSY2 is a rich source of information on affairs in the Middle East. It includes a draft of a letter from Mark Sykes to Winston Churchill which indicates that in January 1915 Sykes lent strong support to the idea of a Dardanelles offensive at a time when Churchill was trying to convince Lord Fisher and the War Council of its viability. Other copies of letters include one from Austen Chamberlain in 1916 and one to Lord Curson about the work of the Mesopotamian Administration Sub-Committee. The war material contains reports on such things as the pan-Arab party in Syria in 1915, the Armenian question, letters from General Clayton with information on cabinet affairs, Arab affairs, on T E Lawrence. There are telegrams from Arthur Balfour and many papers relating to his work with F G Picot for an Inter-Allied settlement in the Middle East (the Sykes-Picot agreement). Material from his Middle East mission of 1918-1919 includes 85 letters, more than half of them about the Armenian massacre of 1915 and refugees. There are another 21 letters relating to the Anglo-Russian Friendship Society and a large number from people involved in the settlement of the Jewish state and Zionism. These include correspondence from Chaim Weizmann, F G Picot, Nahum Sokolow, C P Scott, W Ormesby-Gore, Ronald Storrs and members of the British Palestine Committee (Capern, 'Mark Sykes, Winston Churchill and the Dardanelles Campaign').

A fifth section in DDSY2 has material on military affairs and this includes battalion orders 1907-1914, material relating to Sykes' Wagoners' Special Reserve, and miscellaneous lectures and reports about this (including a draft letter to Lloyd George) and material relating to Sykes' organization in 1913 and 1914 of the Royal Naval and Military tournaments. A sixth section of 'projects' includes material for his literary projects (for example, notes and proofs of The caliph's last heritage and a letter from H G Wells complimenting him on a book) and other projects such as Edith's hospital in France and the war memorials built at Sledmere. A seventh section on political affairs includes all his correspondence during campaigning and during his time as MP for Central Hull as well as his speeches on such matters as Irish Home Rule.

A miscellaneous section in DDSY2 includes a sketchbook with plans of the rebuilding of Sledmere house and printed material. A tenth section comprises material used by Shane Leslie in the 1920s for his book on Mark Sykes and amongst this are cartoons, obituary material including 24 letters of condolence to Edith Sykes, two letters from T E Lawrence and one from H J Greedy at the War Office. A further deposit of Mark Sykes' papers was deposited in April 1976 and is now catalogued as DDSY2/11 and this includes more papers relating to the Sykes-Picot agreement, the Zionist movement and British policy in Islamic countries. There are notes from the India Office, Mark Sykes’ notes and reports and correspondence with people such as General Callwell, General Clayton, Austen Chamberlain, Lord Hardinge, William Ormesby-Gore, Harry Verney and Reginald Wingate. There are two reports by General Clayton on the operational plans of Emir Feisal and other Arab leaders as well as information about T E Lawrence. An appendix (catalogued as DDSY2/12) consists of material previously displayed at Sledmere House and there is more of the same correspondence here including some with Picot. There are prominent papers about the Sykes-Picot agreement and notes of a conference at 10 Downing Street.

Letters from Mark Sykes to his wife Edith 1899–1900

This bundle of letters, from 1899-1900, covers the period just before and during Mark's involvement in the South African War 1899-1902. They are interesting from a war experience perspective, documenting his activities as part of the militia, and provide conversations overheard from the men, attitudes and opinions of contemporaries, and his opinions on the war, its administration, its causes and possible outcomes. His time in South Africa was mainly characterised by boredom, low morale and complete inactivity. The incompetence of army leadership and the constant unfulfilled promise of being relieved by army regulars are frequently mentioned. The letters give the impression that a supposedly great Empire's army should have been no match for a makeshift collection of Dutch peasant farmers, but were frequently outsmarted and out manoeuvred by their guerrilla tactics (considered dishonourable) and knowledge of their own terrain. Mark frequently voiced his expectations to be returning home within a few months, and yet did not return to England until after the war ended in 1902. This shows the complete inability to measure any progress of a war fought on unfamiliar territory according different combat rules. Opinions on key military and political figures of the day, such as Kitchener and Cecil Rhodes, also provide interesting reading.

On a personal level, these letters give us an insight into his relationship with both Edith, and his parents. Throughout the course of these

1899 - 1900
Continued letters, there was the financial problem of his mother's excessive debts, which not only delayed his departure to South Africa, but continued to occupy him during his time at war. After the settlement of Jessica's creditors had been arranged, further unacknowledged debts came to light, causing more damage to Marks already diminished allowance. She was also instrumental in spreading rumours in England of his marriage to Edith, and Edith's travel to South Africa to hasten the match. Though it was Mark's intention to marry Edith, these bully tactics and money motivations did not coerce him into something he would only do once he was prepared in his own time.

His relationship with Edith also develops through the letters. The first four letters are appropriately addressed to Miss Gorst, and signed Mark Sykes, a convention which then changes to the more affectionate address of Honourable and well beloved co-religionist, signed from the Terrible Turk (or T.T.) Mark Sykes. The letters often show Edith's insecurities, as Mark frequently reassured her he had not found anyone else, and that she had good qualities that he admired in her, such as sincerity and honesty. There was also a continuing banter about spelling mistakes, on both sides, and a strange fascination with butterscotch!

U DDSY2/1/2a/77 Letter from Mark Sykes [1900]
About the regiment being debased, a book his is reading, Carlyle’s Cromwell’s letters and speeches, Howard de Walden, reading Tristam Shandy and Thackeray’s writing
These letters, dated from 1901, continue Mark’s experiences of war. During these letters, he became more engaged in army life, and was instrumental in designing and building fortifications for the defence of various posts in South Africa. He also saw some more direct action, which was vividly described in his letters. These letters express a growing contempt for British government and society, as well as for the Army as the war continued without cause or purpose, and leadership proved incompetent and contradictory. The general despondency and disillusion of the men is also expressed. These letters see a number of references to literature, in particular his opinion that 18th century literature, and Parliament were more honest and good than its equivalent in the 19th and early 20th centuries. 52 items

U DDSY2/1/2c Letters from Mark Sykes to his wife Edith
These letters from 1902 cover Mark's return from war, and more society obligations than in previous bundles. At the start of 1902, he was admitted into hospital after suddenly going deaf, and by May he had returned home to England. Many letters describe various dinner engagements, theatre excursions and plays he had seen, and arranged times to meet up with Edith. They also mention the Sykes-Sandars drill book he co-authored, as well as his time in Ireland, describing his opinion of the Irish, and Wyndham, who he would later work for. The last letters of 1902 are sent from the initial stages of his grand trip through the Ottoman Empire and part of Russia, which he had been organising even before he went to South Africa. He took with him his Cambridge friend John Hugh Smith, a man of more delicate nature and less adaptable to Eastern culture than Mark

Starting in 1903, this bundle completes Mark's trip travelling in the East with his friend, with whom he became increasingly annoyed and impatient at his treatment of the native population and stubbornness to change any travel routes. Once he had arrived back in England, he intended to marry Edith, and the letters express an anxiety over his father's approval of the match, followed by various preparations and details once their marriage had been accepted. Soon after their wedding Mark took an appointment under George Wyndham, Chief Secretary of Ireland, but the letters show he found the work unchallenging and un-stimulating, and he expressed a general boredom and dissatisfaction with politics. By 1905, he had requested a post in the East, and became honorary attaché in Constantinople, eventually returning to England again in 1906. These letters offer a further insight into his relationship with his wife, his children, Freya and Richard, and his opinions of political figures of the day. There are also some interesting opinions on Miss Gertrude Bell, a fellow Eastern traveller and ambitious orientalist.

Letters from Mark Sykes to his wife Edith
These letters span the period 1907-1911, and are useful for the examination of a contemporary’s opinion on politics, political figures and parties, as well as several contemporary incidents. From a political viewpoint, these letters cover parliamentary debates on the Insurance Bill 1911, and also make reference to the Budget of 1909. Mark expressed his opinions on political figures such as George Wyndham, Grey, Asquith, Lloyd George, as well as on the varying political parties. His travels to the East, French South Africa and Spain mention meeting or being in the company of several famous people of the day, such as Hall Caine (novelist), Ernest Kassel (German Jewish financier), Charles Wyndham (actor), and Miss Mary Moore (actress). His travels also offer us his opinion of Spanish culture and French methods of rule and administration in Morocco. He also mentions two interesting incidents, the Woods murder case and the Druce case, which were prevalent topics of conversation in the early 20th century.

8 Nov 1911

1912 - 1918
The last bundle of letters from Mark Sykes to his wife, date from 1912 to 1918. They are useful for gaining perspectives on different aspects of the First World War. He trained the terriers in Newcastle at the start of the war, before travelling to Constantinople and many other places in 1915 to gather information. The letters record his opinions on the coming of the war, mobilisation, possible invasion, German chances of victory and public interference. He mentions Picot (the co-creator of the Sykes-Picot agreement regarding the division of Turkey after the War), as well as recording war on the domestic front, when he witnessed an air raid attack and a Zeppelin crash. In 1918, he wrote to Edith from Italy about the Armistice and the Italian public reaction to peace. There are also references to Edith's hospital in France, which she ran with her sister as an emergency hospital near the front line. These letters also give an impression of Mark Sykes as a father, as they include two letters addressed to his children.

Letter from (W Geere) a volunteer on the paper 'The Near East', Caxton House, Westminster, London. Asking if Captain Sykes would care to invest in the paper which is helping good relations between England and Turkey, 4 February 1909

Letter from W Geere, 3 Trinity Road, Wimbledon to Mr Wilson. Thank you for reply to letter of 4th Feb agreeing to show this letter to Captain Sykes. One of the partners on the paper Mr Percy C Clarke may make contact, 20 February 1909

Letter from Percy Clarke. Requesting an interview with Captain Sykes. He also sent information on 'The Near East' Paper founded a year ago for political purposes. It now seems that it could become a business venture. The paper is becoming influential in Turkey and also is in friendly connections with Greece. A business plan is outlined for 5,000 copies per month, 24 February 1909

Letter to Mr Wilson from W Geere. Explaining how he sees the facts. Mr Clarke has paid the expenses on the paper and Mr Lucas has been the Editor. A Greek gentleman who was a partner has incurred excess expenses and is no longer involved. The writer now feels that the paper has a chance to survive, 27 March 1909
