

U DX231

Public lecture delivered by Professor AWB Simpson

1987

Historical Background:

Regulation 18B of the Defence Regulations, 1939 relates to the wartime internment if the Home Secretary has 'reasonable cause' to believe a person has 'hostile associates'.

The landmark Liversidge v Anderson case was concerned with the support the judiciary should give to the Government in times of national emergency.

The lecture, given on 12 May 1987 was subsequently published in the 1988 Denning Law Journal.

Custodial history:

Donated by Prof. Simpson, Professor of Law, University of Kent, July 1987

Description:

Text of a public lecture given by Professor Simpson on the issue of preservation of personal liberty with respect to wartime internment and the Liversidge V Anderson case

Extent: 1 item

Related Material:

File. Duplicated circulars issued by NCCL, 1942-1947 includes reference to Defence Regulation 18B [U DCL/77/2]

Access conditions:

Access will be granted to any accredited reader

U DX231/1

'Rhetoric, reality and Regulation 18B'
Text of public lecture given by Professor AWB Simpson in Oxford on 12th May 1987.

1987

With some annotations and amendments to the text and footnotes.

1 item