Miscellaneous Church Records

1799-2003

Historical Background: Records created by each church, chapel or circuit as part of their regular business.

What would later become Methodism first came to in Hull in 1746, and developed into 4 different strands; Wesleyan, Primitive, New Connexion and United Free Methodists, each with their own circuits. These eventually came together in 1932. For a fuller history on the different Methodist Churches and Circuits, please see our guide to the Methodist Church in Hull, as only the briefest outline can be included here. For example, the Portobello (Primitive) Methodist Church opened in 1906 and was demolished in 1984. St George's Road (Primitive) Methodist Church opened in 1873 and closed in 1966. The International House was established in 1961 by the York and Hull Methodist Church as part of a chain of student houses.

Hope Street Congregational Church (also known as the Providence Independent Chapel) was built in 1797 and was destroyed by bombing in 1941.

St Silas Church was consecrated in 1871. The last service was in 1967 and it was demolished in 1969 after a fire the previous year. St. Cuthberts Church, on Marlborough Avenue, was consecrated in 1906 but rebuilt in 1956 after being destroyed in WW2. St Thomas Church was opened as a temporary church 1873 and fully consecrated in 1882. It was damaged in the war and demolished in the late 1940s.

The Unitarian Church on Park Street was first registered in 1881, replacing an earlier church on Bowlalley Lane.
