Records Relating to Telephone Agreements

1881-1907

Historical Background: In 1898 a Select Committee of the House of Commons recommendation was accepted in favour of local telephone systems being operated by municipalities in competition with the National Telephone Company. The following year, the Telegraph Act 1899 was passed which empowered municipalities to use rates and to borrow for the establishment of local telephone systems under licence from the Postmaster General.

Thirteen bodies took out licences but only six actually set up telephone services and of those six, only Hull was in existence after 1913, despite an offer from the National Telephone Company to buy them out in 1906.

Extent: 2 boxes

Description: Agreements with the National Telephone Company and the Mayor, Aldermen and Burgesses of the Borough of Kingston Upon Hull for telephone equipment in or over public streets or attached to Corporation property, and agreements for the supply of telephonic communications between various Corporation offices.

Related material: Many records relating to Hull's Telephone Department can be found at the Hull History Centre including the records of the Telephone committee 1894-1968 at C TCTP. A number of items relating to telephones can be found within the Hebblethwaite collection at C DBHT and items relating to the official opening of Telephone House can be found within the C SRL/E collection.
