U DDSY2/12/8	Report by W Ormesby-Gore (to Lord Robert Cecil) on a visit to him by Mr Malcolm (of the Armenian Committee) and Dr Chiam Weizmann Both excited and angry, and protesting against any proposal of the British government to allow Morgenthau, Aubrey Herbert, Adam Samuel Block and Marmaduke Pickthall to arrange a separate peace with Turkey, and a proposed mission by Herbert to that end. Malcolm had obtained information on these at a 'treasonable and seditious' meeting at Caxton Hall addressed by Pickthall, who was 'openly talking about an early peace'; and reported Herbert and his friends 'openly bragging that they were about to arrange a separate peace with Turkey'. Weizmann denounced Morgenthau and Block (describing Morgenthau as 'a renegade Jew of Galician origins, who would do all he could to prevent the realisation of a British Protectorate of Palestine...notoriously pro - German and...acted with and on behalf of an international ring of Jewish financiers in Hamburg, Berlin, Vienna, Paris and New York...violently hostile to Great Britain and Zionism'); and revealed that the Germans through Dr Lepsius had recently approached the Zionists with a view to coming to terms with them (it was 'really a question of whether the Zionists were to realise their aims through Germany and Turkey or through Great Britain'). Weizmann 'of course, was absolutely loyal to Great Britain' and said that the overwhelming majority of Jews throughout the world were in favour of a British Protectorate of Palestine 1 item	10 Jun 1917

U DDSY3/1/22	Letter from John Neilson, Glasgow All rebels have left Edinburgh for England. Does not hear that there are any forces on the west road to stop them. About 1,700 of them went to Peebles two days previously. Many who were forced to join them have deserted, and estimated strength 7,000 - 8,000 at most. If Wade has left Newcastle for Berwick, and they head for the West of England, they will have 4 - 5 days start. Fears this unlucky affair will not be over as soon as expected. Nobody from Glasgow has joined the rebels 1 item	4 Nov 1745
U DDSY3/1/23	Letter from Eaton Mainwaring Ellerker, Newcastle Wade has returned from north. Army remained in its former camp. Rebels reported marching on Kelso (sends U DDSY(3)/1/21). U DDSY3/1/24	Letter from John Neilson, Glasgow Rebels were about Kelso, Peebles and Moffatt three days previously. Many deserters. Imagines they are waiting to see whether Wade will advance in Berwick, in which case they might march to Lancashire and Wales. Thinks Wade should split his forces between the east and west roads and attack as soon as possible. Rebels not above 5,000 but if they get into England 'a good many of your Militia will be ready enough to join this Prince' 1 item	8 Nov 1745
U DDSY3/1/25	Letter. Copy. Summons from Prince Charles to mayor of Carlisle. To surrender the city. Sent with U DDSY(3)/1/30 1 item	10 Nov 1745
U DDSY3/1/26	Letter from John and Francis Simpson, Newcastle Rebels near Carlisle. Wade and army still at Newcastle. Thinks they will not march until certain of rebels' route and able to get to north of them. Troops sent from Berwick to secure Edinburgh 1 item	10 Nov 1745
U DDSY3/1/27	Letter from John Neilson, Glasgow 1,500 rebels went to Dumfries on Friday last (i.e. 8 Nov) and demanded £3,000. They are to rendezvous at Gretna Green. Hopes Wade will soon end the rebellion 1 item	11 Nov 1745
U DDSY3/1/28	Letter from [?], Hexham Patrolling near Hartwhistle (Haltwhistle). Ordered to join St. George's Dragoons at Barnard Castle. Wade's army still at Newcastle waiting for news of rebels' route - supposedly through Lancashire, but main body besieging Carlisle. 1,800 troops from south marched into Lancashire, and 7,000 more on way there. Yorkshire companies expected to join them. Several spies taken. Rebels have plenty of transport and about 13 small cannon 1 item	12 Nov 1745
U DDSY3/1/29	Letter from [?], Boroughbridge General Quarter Master of the rebels and a cornet of horse called James Baird of Edinburgh (in Highland dress, with a blue bonnet and white cockade) brought in as prisoners. Rebels taken the west road and besieging Carlisle. Army waiting for news of their further movements. 1 item	13 Nov 1745

U DDSY3/1/30	Letter from John and Francis Simpson, Newcastle Rebels have invested Carlisle. Sends U DDSY(3)/1/25. Gordon of Glenbucket killed by cannon-ball. Wade marches following day to relieve Carlisle 1 item	15 Nov 1745
U DDSY3/1/31	Letter from John and Francis Simpson, Newcastle Wade marched previous day. Mr. Ellerker left previous Tuesday (i.e. 12 November) for his own house: Postscript from Richmond: town of Carlisle taken by rebels on 15 November, castle on 16 November. Wade should be there on 18 November 1 item	17 Nov 1745
U DDSY3/1/32	Extract from letter. Mr. Couper, Penrith to Postmaster at Brough About 3,000 Highlanders in the town ('some houses have 100 a piece') and more coming. All moving south. They have demanded the Post Office accounts. Wade at Hexham previous day, his advance guards at Hayton Bridge. Prince Charles gone to Lord Lonsdale's at 2 p.m 1 item	20 Nov 1745
U DDSY3/1/33	Letter from Thomas Poole, Newcastle Surrender of Carlisle. Wade's army only marched to Hexham, 16 miles in 2 days, the weather and roads very bad. 'Just now the Army is come to town'. Advance guard of rebels at Kendal, main body at Penrith. Duke of Perth and 500 men left in Carlisle. Has been with two rebel deserters, well-armed. Rebels about 7,000- 'the horse are stout men but the foot, poor, mean, insignificant fellows, being destitute of bread' - - : 1 item	22 Nov 1745
U DDSY3/1/34	Letter from John and Francis Simpson, Newcastle Insurance on 'Wakefield' (Gothenburg - Hull). Army to march for Darlington following day (3 divisions; 6 regiments of foot in each). Also demanded names of all who went there but were refused. Levied £1,000 on Paisley for being in arms and sending 160 men to Stirling, but settled for £500. Marched away 2 - 3 January taking enough cloth for 2/3rd of their demands and 2 hostages for rest. Their army reviewed on the Green 30 December. Very hard on surrounding country for hay, straw and corn, and few paid for victuals or drink. Had 3 officers and 6 privates billeted on him. They behaved civilly enough though plenty of stealing in the town under pretext of searching for arms. Rebels thought to have gone to Stirling to secure a passage over the Forth. Many had been forced to join, and will desert once over the Forth. About 5,000 - 6,000 came from England '1/3 of whom I believe might be as good Men as in any Army in Europe, 1/3 of them I believe would pass in any Army in Brittain, the rest of them seemed to be a most despicable crew as ever Bore Arms'. General Hawley and Cobham's Dragoons have joined the rest of the army at Falkirk and are within 4 miles of the rebels. 'There may be some action tomorrow', but wishes it were deferred until rest of King's forces come up, another regiment of horse and two of foot being expected. 200 militia from Argyle in town, to march for Falkirk tomorrow, and more expected to follow. Informed Prince of Hesse is come to Edinburgh, having landed with his troops at Dunbar, 'which will probably bring this unhappy Rebellion to a speedy end'

6 regiments of foot, the remains of Gardner's and Hamilton's dragoons and 13 companies of volunteers from Glasgow and Paisley marched from Edinburgh to Linlithgow on the 13th, where they surprised 300 foraging rebels from Falkirk, capturing 11 prisoners. 6 other regiments of foot with about 10 cannon also gone from Edinburgh to Linlithgow; and Colonel Campbell with 900 militia from Argyllshire marched there from Glasgow on the 14th. Hawley still at Edinburgh, believed waiting for 2 regiments of horse. Rebels, about 6,000, about Stirling and Bannockburn and seemed determined to stand for battle. If they crossed the Forth, half of them would desert. Most of the men and a good many officers were heartily weary of the enterprise when at Glasgow. They had been forced into war by their masters and only wanted to get home again

Rebels have evacuated Aberdeen, Montrose, Dundee and Perth and coming South to join those near Stirling. Army marched from Linlithgow to Falkirk on 16th, being joined there by the vanguard under General Campbell and artillery train. Hawley left Edinburgh for Falkirk on Thursday (i.e. 16 January), leaving Colonel Cochrane there to wait for the Prince of Hesse and his Hessians. Battle expected near Stirling. Sempil's regiment and Scotch Fusiliers would be in Edinburgh on 17th, and Cobham's dragoons marched through there for Linlithgow on the 16th

Sending copy of letter from Berwick (19 January) giving news of battle of Falkirk (began at 3.30 p.m. and lasted until 6.00 p.m. Violent storm of wind and rain in faces of our troops. Our cannon never discharged and 7 captured by rebels. Huske beat back main body of rebels and made safe retreat to Linlithgow with luggage about 7.00 p.m. Rebels kept field of battle. Ligonier's dragoons retrieved their honour. Our casualties not above 300, rebels three times that. 'Battereau's, Wolf's and the old Buffs drove them off the field' and would not have quitted it but for the bad weather. Colonels Whitney, Biggar and Stanhope killed, also Lt. West of Ligonier's. Maj. Macdonald captured and sent to Edinburgh, Huske universally extolled. Army retreated to Edinburgh, ammunition wet and spoiled. Rebels said to be not less than 12,000 and out numbered our army by some thousands)

Battle of Falkirk. About 140 loyalist dead and 3 - 4 times as many rebels. Rebels kept field and captured 7 cannon. They would have had as complete a victory as that over Cope but for Huske, who made a stand with Barrell's, Ligonier's and another regiment of foot, and covered retreat of rest to Linlithgow from where they marched next day to Edinburgh. Our troops' chief trust in guns, rebels in broadswords. Lucky for loyalists that night came on, since storm of wind and rain prevented reloading after first discharge. Storm not so violent at foot of hill where Huske was. Rebels about 7,000; loyalists about 8,000. Hawley much blamed for neglect in drawing up troops and not possessing himself of proper ground. About an hour before the action some officers were riding about asking if anyone knew the moor, and whether there were morasses or ditches. If the army had behaved but tolerably, a complete victory might have been won, for rebels were running away before the battle 'in scores, thirtys and fiftys'. Poor creatures forced into rebellion by masters and chiefs, and only wanting chance to desert. Army now joined with 2 regiments of foot at Edinburgh

| U DDSY3/1/69 | Letter from John and Francis Simpson, Newcastle Weather so severe, Cumberland still at Aberdeen with army. Prince of Hesse entered Perth 9 March. Considerable body of rebels marched from Inverness, captured Fort Augustus but repulsed with great loss of Fort William. Pretender sick at Elgin. Some rebel clans offered to submit on terms. Order from Cumberland read from pulpits that all rebels should give in their arms, names and places of abode on a promise of recommendation to royal mercy. Some complied 'and several others fled directly to the Rebels'1 item | 16 Mar 1746 |
| U DDSY3/1/70 | Letter from John Neilson, GlasgowNo dependable news. Rebels round Inverness claim to be about 8,000 and intend to give Cumberland battle. May dispute passage of the Spey or, keeping moving, give the Duke the slip 'and pay us another visit'. If they do 'we could not be more surprised at it than at their retreat from Derby'. Hopes to see Sykes soon, having sent packs of fine linens to York where he will open and sell them1 item  | 19 Mar 1746 |
| U DDSY3/1/71 | Letter from John and Francis Simpson, Newcastle Barrell's, Cholmondeley's, Royal Scots and Price's regiments of foot with some dragoons marched from Aberdeen to Inverurie and Old Meldrum on 13 March under command of Bland. Battereau's, the Fusiliers, Munro's and Braggs with some dragoons followed on 17 March under Sempill. This on report that 2,600 had crossed Spey and were cantoned at Fochaber, Keith and Strathbogie about 6 miles from Cumberland's advanced guards.
